Attorney General John Ashcroft

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I believe that the demands to break up Microsoft in the beginning of the antitrust suit against it would have had an adverse effect not only on my business but the IT industry as a whole. Fortunately, the settlement reached between Microsoft and Justice Department is reasonable. To settle this case is in the best interests of the consumer and the economy. While I do believe that sanctions against Microsoft are appropriate, we need to react rationally and not do anything that would result in damage to the economy.

Thank you.
